IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776.

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America.

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation. We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its Powers in such Form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient Causes; and accordingly all experienced Men have deemed it safest never to change to whom they are under subjection. But when a long train of Abuses and Misuses, proving such a State of Oppression, as to require a Change in the Form of Government, a more effectual Remedy is than a mere Change in the Persons who fill the Seats of Power. The History of the present King of Great Britain is a History of repeated Injuries and Oppressions, all having in direct and indirect Object the Establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. He has refused his Assent to certain Acts of the Legislature, the most wholesome and necessary for the public Good. He has forbidden his Governors to pass Acts of the most urgent Importance, unless they comply with his obnoxious Conditions, which avarice and ambition, rather than sense of the Duty of Government, have dictated to him.
