HITLER DEAD

Fuehrer Fell at CP, German Radio Says; Doenitz at Helm, Vows War Will Continue

German radio announced last night that Adolf Hitler had died. Gen. Karl Doenitz, former command-in-chief of the German Navy, has succeeded him as ruler of the Reich, the radio announcer said.

Doenitz made a radio speech immediately after the announcement, Doenitz said, and declared that Germany would continue to wage war. His statement upheld peace efforts which had been prevalent for more than a week in all world capitals.

Churchill Hints Peace Is at Hand

Churchill's speech, broadcast in a tone of relief and optimism, was the first since the announcement of Hitler's death. He said that the war would be over in a few days and that the German people would be spared further suffering. He also mentioned that the British government was ready to accept a peace settlement based on the Four Big Powers.

The announcement did not give any details of how the Reich leader died. The news was broadcast after solemn Wagnerian music, including "Fidelio of the Gods," was played.

"Letting nothing," a voice said, "in a few minutes you will hear a solemn and important message to the German people. We are now going to play a statement of Doenitz's 'Seventh Symposium.'" Finally, the report of Hitler's death was given.

Hitler's death came three days after his former deputy, Gen. Gerd von Rundstedt of Italy, was killed by Italian partisans near the village of Dongo on Lake Como.

Doenitz, in his speech, said that Hitler "had fallen at his command post," while Himmler radio said that he died in the Reich Chancellery in Berlin yesterday afternoon. Karl Army troops fighting in the
